

When I signed up for New Jersey's Do Not Call list, I understood that as soon as my name was added, I would no longer be bothered with nuisance calls from Telemarketers. No stipulations for any reason. Leave it as it is. I live very well, not having to hang up on a college student who's working on commission to sell me something I don't need nor want. Let him/her take one of the many but perhaps not-quite-so-lucrative jobs that go begging and stop participating in the scourge that scammed the nation for so long prior to the implementation of the List. Don't 'fix' it; it's not broken.
